

Africa

Globally relevant?

Biography:

Prof Dries Hauptfleisch BSc (Building Management), MBA and PhD

He obtained the degrees BSc (Building Management), MBA and PhD, all from the University of Pretoria and is an emeritus professor of the University of Pretoria, where he was head of the Department of Construction Economics when he took early retirement. Presently he is a contract lecturer for the University of the Free State, inter alia responsible for Continuing Education for the Department of Quantity Surveying and Construction Management. Specific attention is given to the development of Facilities Management as discipline. He is a Research Consultant and Contract Partner of the CSIR and also undertakes research, development and consultation work for private and public sector clients.

He is the Chief Executive Officer of a group of private companies involved with manufacturing, construction, property development, research, education and health care.